Another feature of the new Constitupractice is that which gives the minority a representation in the two houses of the the new instrument provides as follows

"In voting for Senstors and Represe n tatives in the districts and counties en tilled to more than two, each elector may cast as many votes for one candidate as there are Senators and Representatives to be elected, or he may distribute the same or equal parts thereof among the candi-dates as he may see fit, and the candidates receiving the highest number of votes shall be declared elected."

This is a wholesome provision and we deeply regret that nothing of the kind was embodied in the new Constitution of this State. But our Bourbons were not BERCHER has done. Perhaps also he can the men to ignore party ascendency and themselves for so much progressive legislation in times past, should ratify this provision to-day. We trust that they will not ignore their opportunity.

Another wise provision prohibits cities and towns from assessing more than five per cent in any one year for local improvements. Another abolishes the system of fees and perquisites now received by county officials and substitute regular ent person through whom Mr. BERCHER salaries, turning the extras into the public treasury, thus increasing the public reve-

It is perhaps proper, however, that we should remind voters that their tickets to-day must be in the following shape:

If "For the New Constitution," be erased the other votes will be lost altogether, precisely as if they had been all erased. The vote "against the New Constitution," and for any of the other propositions will be stultification, as those vote are of no account unless the New Constitution be adopted

Perhaps we should add a word in regard to the "license" feature of the new Constitution, about which so much has been said among our neighbors, and which appears above as one of its special features, although not an incorporated provision of the new instrument. The people of Ohio have been adjured to refuse to clothe the Legislature with any power to authorize the granting of license to traffic in liquors. It is proper to underadoption of the license article. It will simply leave the people of Ohio free to try the mode of restricting by license and special tax, or to adopt any other means of restricting or prohibiting the sale that ever has been tried, or that even the most extreme prohibitionists propose to try. In short, it will leave plenary power over this matter in the hands of the people, where the principle of popular government requires it to be.

She goes to his study to tell him so; how much enjoyment she finds in his words; or she writes him a letter, and pours out her little soul full of twaddle about her gratitude for what her dear paster has done for her how her dear pastor has done for her; how her dear pastor has done for her; how she 'is litted up" by his instructions; how she loves him as a friend given to be her guide and comfort, and so on, more and worse, running into a mawkish sentiment-ality, a sickening man-worship, disgusting to every sensible person, but very nectar to a vain, worldly preacher, who seeks only to make his hearers "feel good."
